REPUBLICAN MEETING TO-NIGHT

We hope the invitation of our Republican citizens to assemble in City Hall this evening will meet with a full response, and that there will be a strong gathering of the earnest men of our city to inaugurate a vigorous campaign. The issues involved appeal to the highest impulses of patriotism and regard for the public welfare, and our citizens cannot too soon begin to organize against heresies which strike at the foundations of National honor and legitimate business. It is a time for all honest citizens to come to the front and show their strength, and we hope to see them in goodly numbers at City Hall this evening.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.

We are constantly hearing from different quarters that Greenbackers are busily asserting the ridiculous falsehood that the National Debt has not been reduced. Of course there are very few who do not know better, but for the benefit of those, we give the following official figures of the amount of the principal of the public debt outstanding at different dates: The total debt, less cash in Treasury, Oct. 31, 1865, was $2,740,864,750. The total debt, less cash in Treasury, Aug. 1, 1878, was $2,035,980,634.35, showing a reduction of $705,276,225.15 since 1865.

In addition to this the annual interest account has been reduced from $143,781,891.01 for 1867, to $97,124,511.93 for 1877; showing a decrease of $46,657,080.23 in the amount expended annually for interest on the public debt.

Only $733,001,200 of the bonded debt now bears 6 per cent. interest, while $1,053,116,650 has already been funded at a lower rate, and the Government is now rapidly funding at 4 per cent.

A CONSIDERATE FOR INFLATIONISTS.

We copy from the editorial columns of the New York Herald of Saturday, the following significant paragraph: "Various financial institutions which lend money, and would like to get the full legal rate of interest for it, have within the past two days subscribed for five millions of four per cent. bonds, for lack of something better in the way of interest and security. And yet there are men who will gravely argue that there is not enough currency in the country!"

The whole theory of National [or Greenback] dealing with the currency question is that Government is endowed with some occult power by which it can give value to paper by the mere stamping process. The world's experience has proved this to be fallacious, and the world's experience was was acquired in very dear schools.—Detroit Free Press (Dem.)

On the first of June, 1878, the aggregate circulation of the National Banks had been reduced almost $50,000,000 since the banking was made free to all in 1863.

"A FOR EARNESTLY GUESS."

Under this heading the Government of last evening proceeds to illustrate the words by editing itself as a victim how very amusing they. Yesterday morning we called its editorial attention to the fact that the Merchants' National Bank of New York had increased its capital from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, as evidence that the Commercial had abandoned the absurd cry about the monopoly and the enormous privileged profits of the National banking system. We remarked that the Commercial "undoubtedly perceived how completely the action of these stockholders refuted the idea of an enormously profitable monopoly, since it is not reasonable to suppose that men would voluntarily reduce the capital of an enormously profitable business to the extent of two millions of dollars."

Finding himself thus in difficulty, his neighbor desperately sought for some loop-hole of escape. How sure how blindly he rushed into the net: He guessed that we did not notice that it was the "capital" of the bank that had been reduced, and assumed that we referred to a reduction of "circulation." He guessed wrong! We were fluent with the facts, having published them only a few days ago. But he eagerly rushes in contradict the idea that the bank had reduced its "circulation" to $1,000,000 which he admits would be most damaging to his theory of the enormous profits of the National bank of privileges; and how does he do it? By proclaiming the fact that instead of reducing its circulation to $1,000,000, the great bank of $6,000,000 of capital had increased reduced its National Bank circulation to the quick snatcher sum of only $137,600!

If a reduction to $1,000,000 or its relation would afford strong evidence that the advantages of "double interest" are not "enormous," certainly a reduction to less than one-seventh of that amount must furnish a most striking proof of the fact—The fish was not only "handsomely caught" but has been very safely landed.

He flounders a little, as fish will when thrown up high and dry, but his flops but only gather himself more uncomfortable. For instance, he flounders into declaring that the bank has only $675,000 U. S. bonds deposited at Washington to secure its circulation, which must make his readers wonder why the bank should keep its $1,670,000 of U. S. bonds locked up in its own vault instead of sending them at once to the Treasury to secure "circulation" and the "enormous profits" of that "double interest!" and finally our enmeshed neighbor bursts out in his desperation:

"Having a splendid result, it banks upon it capitally and finds that it can do business on a capital of $1,000,000 just as well as on $2,000,000."

And, he might have added, it finds it more profitable to hold a merely nominal amount of National Bank circulation than to avail of its ability to secure and enjoy millions of that "enormously profitable monopoly."

We don't wonder that our neighbor stuck that article as an editorial plum outside of the editorial page. As a humorist we do not think he is truly such a success, but as questions of finance he rivals Mark Twain.

HOW THE CURRENCY BEATS.

[From the Boston Traveller.]

We have believed and have said that the conversion of the mid newspapers which have clamored for a departure from the old Republican policy was only a question of time—that they were tickled with play things which were frail and but for a day, and that they would return to the old platform as soon as the popular tide turned. For justification of this theory, now read the following, from a leading editorial in the Journal:

Two Republican journals in New York are not entirely pleased with the platform adopted by the Maine Republican Convention. In the opinion of one, its declarations on the currency question are not solemn enough in their severity, while the other charges it with the sin of omission in that it did not arraign the Democratic house, the Potter investigation and assert the validity of the President's title.

We will do these journals the credit to suppose the opinion that has just been printed is a fair conclusion from a well-informed respecting the political situation in Maine as were the members of our delegation, they would have pursued the same course which that intelligent body did. We believe that the old conservative element of wisdom, fidelity and courage to adhere to the platform is vital.

That is sufficiently implicable and shall want to suit the most radical Republican. We quote it simply to show that plank like that displayed by the Maine men, under very discouraging circumstances, under slander and demagogical abuse such as this same Journal joined the organs in administering to the Maine Republicans last year for pursuing substantially the same course as they now take,—that pluck in the pursuit of principle will conquer even the most chronic cases of time-serving. Wherever the Republican party has stood adhered to principle and steadily refused to be led astray by personal idolatry and new-made issues, it triumphed more than in the same matter of rates; it quickened the pulse and of lukewarm friends and homeless and low, and forced respect from and commanded the action of the enemy. There is stronger than it ever was before, and elsewhere the Republican party would do well to observe this fact and take onto itself more of courage and constancy.

THE MAINE REPUBLICANS

[From the Indianapolis Journal.]

The Republicans of Maine have determined to be on the campaign on an honest-money platform, and meet the greenbackers and inflationists in fair fight. That is right. There is nothing to be made by truckling or dodging on the financial issue. It has got to be fought out, and fiat-money-ism, inflationism, and communism buried in a common grave.

[From the Buffalo N. Y. Express.]

Senator Blaine evinced his talent as a political manager by bringing together an enthusiastic Republican Convention in his State, having the entire Congressional delegation from the State and other prominent persons present, and securing the adoption of a platform which means something and which all Republicans can heartily indorse. Upon the financial question in particular the platform is explicit and admirable, and notwithstanding the reports of a strong Greenback sentiment in the State, there hard money resolutions were adopted with enthusiasm. Clearly the campaign in Maine is to be bold and aggressive. It will be a square and honest fight for Republican principles, not complicated with any question relating to the administration, and compromising with nobody. The men of Maine have the courage of their convictions and are bound to win.

It is reported from Mississippi that Jefferson Davis has entertained the idea of running for the United States Senate in place of Senator Bruce. His friends have urged him to make the fight and stand his chances before the Senate for the removal of his political disabilities. Major Barksdale, editor of the Clarion, one of Mr. Davis's ardent admirers, is a candidate for the Senatorship, but will support Mr. Davis if he decides to run. Referring to this announcement the N. Y. Tribune says:

Mr. Jefferson Davis can spare himself the trouble of running for the United States Senate. The Ninth draws the line at Jefferson Davis.

IMPORTANT ASSERTION.

(From the Concord Monitor.)

The Boston Journal has been a thick and-thin policy organ. It has justified the abandonment of Packard, and the corruption of the legal Legislature and the Supreme Court of Louisiana on the ground that bayonet rule could not be longer maintained—a statement equivalent to a confession that the way and the reconstruction policy were worse than a mistake; for it was to conserve the fruits of the one that the other was inaugurated. It has assumed that the give away policy had softened the hearts of the White Leaguers to such an extent that peace and order and perfect political toleration existed throughout the Southern region. Now, however, a change has come over it. Believing in the condition of affairs in the bulldozed parishes of the Pelican State, it gives prominence to the statement of the New Orleans correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette—likewise an organ of guilt and carpet-bag—to the effect that "at the present time the blacks are entirely in the power of the Democratic leaders in those parishes. Their freedom is but a bitter mockery, inasmuch as it enters through entire abstinence. The blacks who gave testimony in 1874 have since been under the ban and dare not testify to the truth again. They, therefore, they have been called to testify before the sub-committee they were made to understand that they must recast their previous testimony or suffer persecution." Now, how in this for "conciliation?" How is it for "peace?" How is it for fealty to the blacks as ever and ever again proclaimed in Republican National platforms? The cowardice, the hypocrisy, the abject submission to the mob spirit involved in the "policy" is unspeakable! The people will yet awake to a full realization of the terrible cheat put upon them, and then—let the subjugationists flee from under!

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

McPHERSON'S HANDBOOK OF POLITICS. McPherson's Handbook of Politics for 1878 has just been issued, and is circulated in New England by the agent, Charles E. Pierce, 281 Washington street, Boston. Hon. Edward McPherson has a national reputation, which is a guaranty of the value of his work to politicians and others, more especially in a year of unbounded amazing contests like the present. The book contains a history of the Presidential election of 1876, and the following controversy and action of the Electoral Commission, together with all the documents connected with the political changes ordered for South Carolina and Louisiana, various political platforms, and important votes in Congress. As a book of reference, this has no equal. Price, $2.00 post-paid.

Notice to Log Owners.

Notice is hereby given that it will probably be necessary to bring a boom across the Main Stream and Penobscot river at Greenbush, to secure the West Branch drive, thereby obstructing the navigation of the river for a few days, and no person or logs or rafts lying above the trip at Greenbush, will be permitted to pass below at such time as they may wish to move said logs beyond the mouth of Argyle Stream.

To my Patrons and Friends in Bangor and vicinity—Greeting.

For many years I have used "PULMONITE BURNER" as a BASE for artificial ice. I find there is economy in this place and many who have used it here, have declared certainly with caution in the matter. But for more than three years I have used a new plaster—the "Celebrated Plaster," with the present improvements. This plate is entirely free from everything in the process subsequent to the mould. My patients are supplied with it, and the more I use it the better I like. Those who understand the use of BURNER can count and save a new pair of teeth made upon the "Celebrated Plaster."

All dental work that comes to me, I will do it on the most approved plan and at the lowest terms.
